HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 9TH, 1890.

In another column we reproduce from the Japan Mail an article on Tonkin persus Ja pan coal, which is founded on one which had appeared in the Tokyo Shimpo. From this it is very evident that the Japanese are wide awake to the coming competition of Tonkin. coal with the produce of the mines Kiushiu, and that they have not under-estimated its importance. The Tokyo journal admits with sorrow that Japanese merchants have allowed themselves to be carried away out and keep watch over the den of a tiger, and by a penny-wise-and-pound-foolish policy, and have exported a vast amount of rubbish which has brought Japanese coal into dis. their guns, and on arriving at the spot a large repute. This is perfectly true. This paragraph fairly bristles with errors FOR COAST PORTS, Waters are packed Annam (not Anam) is situated in Eastern Asia and not in Africa as letated. The Au namites have no coin representing a valu of £65. Their only coinage, until the ad vent of the French, was the common sapek cash of the country, made chiefly of zinc and representing about the smallest value any coin in the world, about the thirtieth of a cent. The reference to a Japanese coin called the "obang" is probably intended to mean the now obsolete Japanese Koban which, however, was never worth £10, its. value being about &! 12s. Finally, we are told that the Chinese "teel" is equal to about seven shillings, when no such coin has ever existed, the tael merely being a stand ard of value. If the remainder of this in teresting piece of information be onto reliability with the foregoing, its value is small indeed. Such blunders are apt bring a journal into discredit, and the editors of London papers would do well to be sure of the sources of their information before giving it to the world:

Jananese attention is again being directe seenly to the possibility of strong competition on the part of the Tonkin coal mines. The mines are chiefly in the possession of the Hon. P. Chater, of Hongkong, whose well usiness energy leaves no doubt that ever Considering the time that has clapsed since Tonrin began to be talked of as an immediate source of coal supply, the public probably feels some surprise that this confident promise remains so long unfulfilled. Still, there is very little reason to doubt that good coal exists in large quantities in the French colony, and that, sooner for later, t will be put upon the market in funntities sufficiently large and at rates sufficiently low to interfere sensibly with Japan. With the prospect in view the question for Japanese exporters to consider is whether they cannot poses. The Tokyo Shinipa devotes an article to scoure remunerative positions the subject. Deputy Vieling unfastened the thumbsorews which held back the obsir in place and began to lower it so that the rabber cap which held the saturated sponge pressed against the top of Kennaler's head. The warden swisted in holding Kemmler's band. Kemmler said: "Ob you'd better press that down further, I guess; press that down. So the head piece was unclamped and presse farther down. While it was being done Kommler said. "Well, I want to do the best I can I dan't do any better than that." Warden Durston took in his hand the leather

Th top strap pressed down against the none of Remmler until it flittened it down slightly over his face. The harness was then put in place. The pody remained in a rigid costion for seventeen seconds. The jury and witnesses, who had remained seated up to this moment came harriedly forward and surrounded beyond the first convulsion. It was not a vestty sight, this man in his shirt sieeves, bound hand, foot, body, and even head, with a heavy framework pressing down on the top of his skull. Dr. McDonald held s stop watch in his hand and as the seconds flew by he noted their masage. Spitzka took and looked at the stop watch, and as the tenth second expired he oried

There was to be no injetake this time about the killing. The dynamo was run up to the highest spied, and again a full current of 2,000 volts was sant through the body. How long it was kept in action no one knows. To the excited group about the chair it seemed an interminable time. Dr. Daniel, who looked at his watch aroltedly and who thought he had an an proximate idea of time at least, said that it was

No ous was anxious to give the signal to stop. All dreaded the responsibility of offering to the man a chance to revive. or to give again, at least, those appearances of returning animation which startled and sickened the wit nesses a few minutes before. As the auxious group stood silently watching the body, suddeny there arese from it a white vapour bearing with it a purgent and slokening odour. The body was burning. Again there were ories to stop the current, and again the warden sprang to the door and gave a quick order to the assistants. The current was stopped, and again there was a relaxation of the body. There was no doubt this ti ne that the current had done its work, if not will, at least completely. Dr. Fell, who stood at the side of the special correspondent of the As sociated Press, turned and said:

"Well, there is no doubt about one thing. The man never suffered an iota of pain." In after consultations the other physicians expressed the same belief. It was some mitigation of the horrors of the situation to believe this, but the mitigation was extremely slight when it developed on another point. The same doctors disagree very materially as to whether Kemmler was dead when his chest moved and his Brown & Co., H. G., lips gave forth those strange, ghastly sounds. Campbell, Moore&Co. G., again, he would have revived. Others, among them Dr. Spitzka, stated with equal positiveness H. & C. Bakery the conviction that the first shock killed

Kammler instantly. Drs. Daniels and Southwick—the father of the system of electricide—believed Keminler dead, hat they think the current should have been ntinued longer than seventeen seconds, which was the official time of the first contact. There is no way in which positive determination of this question can be made. It will always r main unsolved. The nutopay began at. 9 out on the table that very severe rigor mortis had set in. There was little relaxation; and it was with difficulty that the corpse was straight onolout. On examination it was found that the s sound electrode burned through the skin and into the fleek at the base of the spine, making a scar nearly five inches in diameter. The heart, lungs, and other organs were taken.

out and found to be in a good healthy condition. They will be preserved for further examination. the brain was also taken out, and it, too, will be, carefully examined. The doctors who performed the autopay have prepared a preliminary statement of the results of the execution. They agree that unconsciousness was instantly produced and that death was apparently painless, notwithstanding the fact that there was some slight defect in the electrical apparatus; which required a sebond contact of the current to insure death, can sing the extensive charring, of the body at the points of contact with the electrodes; also, the minute hemorrhages, found in the serious memoranes and in the ventrioles of the brain. The blood fluid was dark. In the region of contact the blood was carbolized. There was a decided change in the consistency and colour of the brain, corresponding with the point of contact. The destructive change of the blood corpusoles was noted.

As to the causes of the failure to kill Kemmler instantly, there is said by all physicians to be no doubt that consciousness was stricken instantly from his brain. The fact that he was not instantly killed is the result of improper contact or of insufficient voltage or pressure. The contact certainly was not perfect at the head, for two-thirds of the confact was upon the Trust & Loan Co. man's thick smoothly, brushed hair, the clipped spot being one-third the size of the electrode's Watson & Co., A.
